in attempting to define a poetics of paradox from a traditional chinese standpoint james liu explores through a comparative approach linguistic textual and interpretive problems of relevance to western literary criticism liu s study evolves from a paradoxical view originating from early confucian and daoist philosophical texts that the less is said in poetry the more is meant such a view implied the existence of paradox in the very use of language and led traditional chinese hermeneutics to a study of metaparadox the use of language to explicate texts the meaning of which transcends language itself as liu illustrates elements of traditional chinese hermeneutics with examples of poetic and critical works he makes comparisons with the works of such western literary figures as shakespeare mallarme pound ionesco derrida and shepard the comparisons bring to light a crucial difference in conceptualization of language chinese critics especially those influenced by daoism and buddhism seem to have held a deitic view of language language points to things whereas western critics seem to have thought of language as primarily mimetic language represents things liu examines the consequences of these views showing how both offer insights into the meaning of text and to what extent both have led to a metaparadox of interpretation originally published in 1988 the princeton legacy library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of princeton university press these editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions the goal of the princeton legacy library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by princeton university press since its founding in 1905

this book is in the cambria sinophone world series general editor victor h mair includes rare color images chinese poetry along with many other art forms in china underwent a highly self conscious transformation in the first decades of the twentieth century poetry perhaps more than any other art form did so under the heavy burden of a voluminous literary precedent a precedent which was in its very format of patterned words inscribed on scrolls a mark of the chinese literati tradition turning away from this tradition seemed necessary in the context of a political social and cultural reform movement which was designed to strengthen china in the face of increasing international pressure as well as domestic breakdown at the same time reforming a poetic tradition which had served as a principal touchstone of aesthetic accomplishment from its role in confucian canon as object of contemplation for correct action to its function as a test of candidate s qualifications to govern through the civil service examination to its function as national past time in all manner of social gathering was a major challenge the result of such a predicament for poets throughout the twentieth century has been the compulsion to discover a poetic style which resonates with the modern world and yet is rooted in chinese cultural experience one way in which poets have been able to accomplish this is by relying on poetry s visuality be it in the graphic properties of the writing system itself the visual context of the presentation of the poetic texts or the acute image details in the poems the history of approximately one century of modern chinese poetry production has been addressed broadly in scholarship but such broad strokes tend to miss important dynamics which fall outside of general narratives the importance of chinese visual tradition to modern chinese poets is a good case in point accordingly this book addresses specific manifestations of the nexus connecting modernity and visuality in chinese poetry it begins with a discussion of may fourth poetics as exemplified in the groundbreaking work of li jinfa china s first symbolist poet from there the book traces notable developments of visuality in the new form or free verse writing called xinshi or new poetry through mid century modernist experiments in taiwan focusing on ji xian from there the book then explores the avant garde poetry of luo qing and xia yu before returning to mainland chinese developments of misty poets yan li and his contemporaries the work concludes with a wide variety of poet artists writing and exhibiting in the twenty first century looking across this period of modern chinese poetry s development one is able to observe how important the visual verbal dynamic has been to the innovation of poetic style and method from the twenty first century on such multi media expressions will likely continue to grow this is a function of a chinese aesthetic tradition pairing word and image and will continue to manifest in new and more inventive ways this is an important book for asian literary and art history studies and history collections a reconsideration of chinese decadent tuifei poetry which argues that this poetry is not a marginal trend but rather a vital part of the chinese literary tradition in this collection of passionately argued essays the internationally acclaimed poet and critic wai lim yip calls western scholarship to account for its treacherous representation of non western literature yip moves from plato to hans georg gadamer from chuang tzu to mao tse tung from john donne to robert creeley as he attempts to create a double consciousness that includes the state of mind of the original author and the expressive potentials of the target language he aims first to expose the types of distortions that have occurred in the process of translation from one language to another and second to propose guidelines that will prevent this kind of linguistic violence in the future in this collection of passionately argued essays the internationally acclaimed poet and critic wai lim yip calls western scholarship to account for its treacherous representation of non western literature yip moves from plato to hans georg gadamer from
